PROTECT THE TREES

where you live,
play or camp.

Get FIREWOOD
where you use it.

Insects and diseases that kill trees can hide and hitchhike in firewood.

DON'T GIVE THEM
A FREE RIDE.

DON'T MOVE
FIREWOOD.

You can help keep the trees in Wisconsin's yards, parks and forests healthy and beautiful.

How?

It's simple.

Don't move firewood.

Firewood easily transports harmful pests and other problems to trees in your backyard, along your street, or at your favorite campsite. Firewood that looks clean may actually be hiding insects or the tiny spores of a tree-killing fungus.

Instead of taking firewood along on your next camping trip or bringing some home with you from far away, get your firewood where you're going to use it. Make sure that it was produced from trees harvested nearby.
Consider buying your firewood from a certified firewood dealer.

Many campgrounds now restrict firewood use. Call ahead for specific information for your campsite.

Remember, insects and diseases that can kill trees are excellent hitchhikers in firewood.

To help protect the trees in all your favorite places don't give those tree-killers a free ride and don't move firewood.
